

The President and his smile captivates "Dear Old England"

A doughboy with the Presidential standard guards the "luggage" of the President's party at Charing Cross Station.

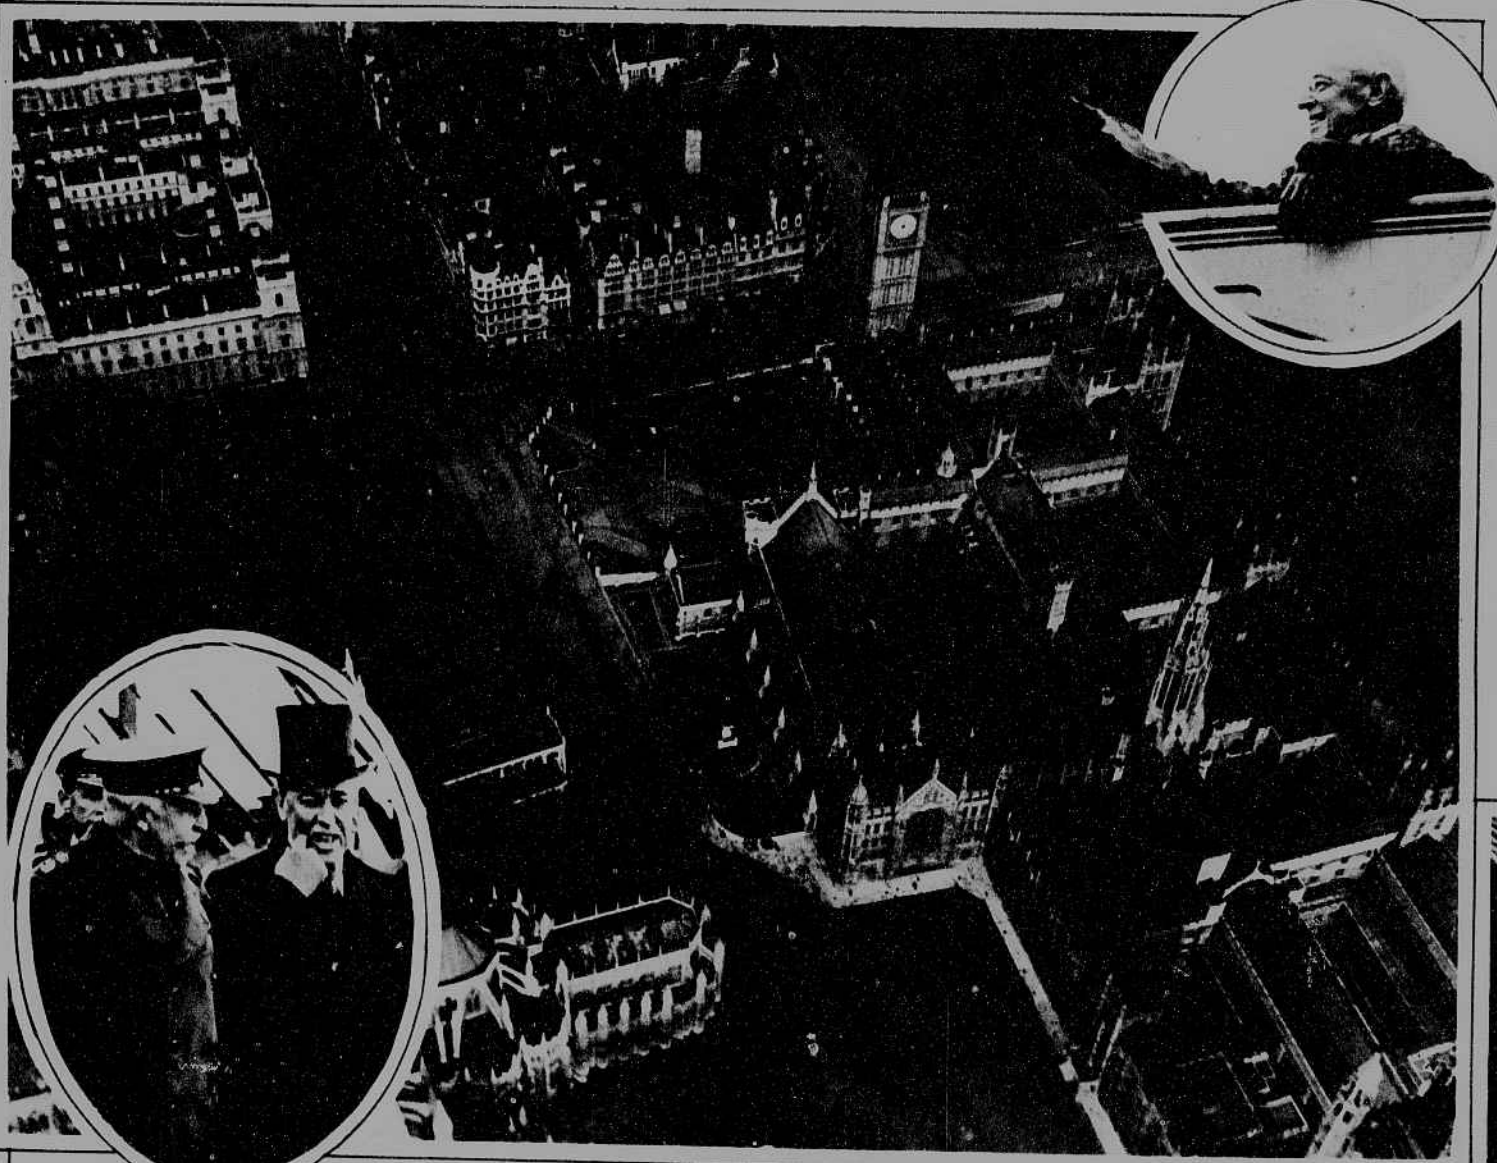

The Lord Mayor of London presenting the freedom of the city to President Wilson. Can you pick out Lloyd George from among the distinguished guests?

© Underwood & Underwood

President and Mrs. Wilson pose for a flashlight before taking the train to Manchester. Apparently they are taking no chances with North of England weather.

© Central News

The royal coach bearing President Wilson and King George has just passed on its way to the Guildhall. Stars and Stripes and Union Jacks form a veritable canopy overhead.

© Central News

An unusual view of the House of Parliament taken from an airplane well above "Big Ben," which has just struck the quarter hour.

© Central News

The President, accompanied by the Duke of Connaught, on a tour of inspection. The President is evidently thinking twice before answering a question put to him by His Royal Highness.

© Central News

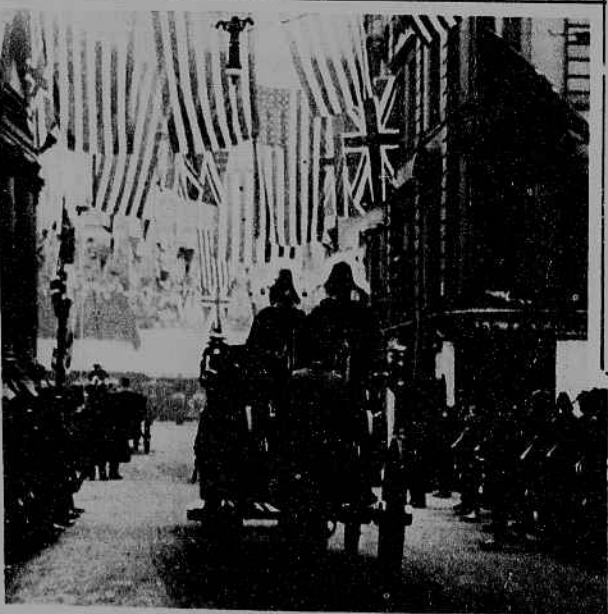

President Wilson listens patiently to a formal address of welcome on his arrival at Dover.

© Central News

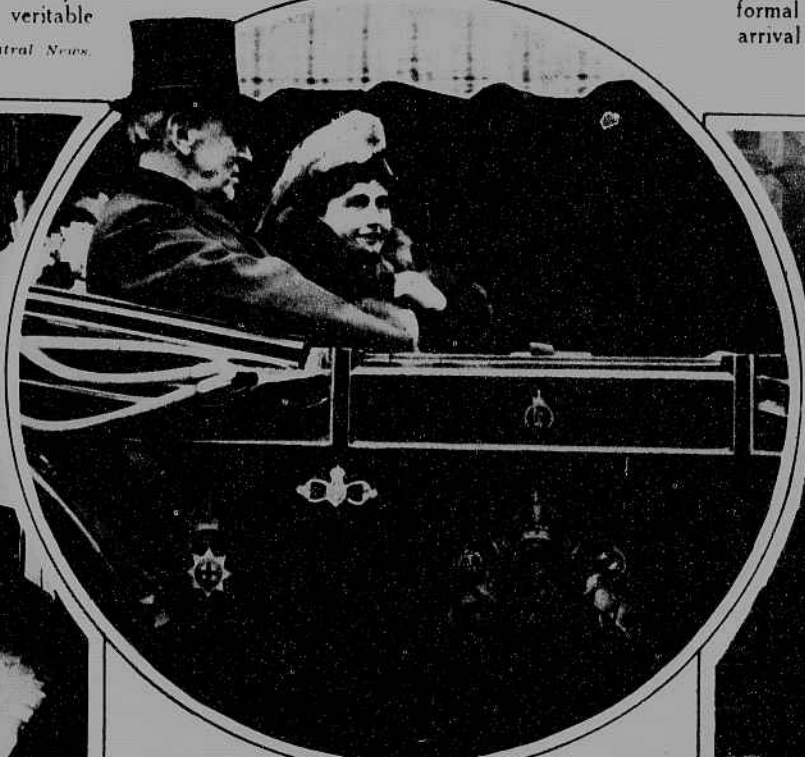

Mrs. Wilson graciously poses for her picture on her visit to the American Ladies' Club in Mayfair.

© Central News

President and Mrs. Wilson occupied one of the finest suites in Buckingham Palace during their stay in London. Above is a corner of President Wilson's bedroom.

© Central News

In Washington a Pierce-Arrow, in London a royal coach and four. President and Mrs. Wilson leaving Guildhall for the Mansion House.

© Western Newspaper Union

The President, from the bridge of a Manchester steamer, catches what is probably his first glimpse of a German supersubmarine.

© Central News